I. INTRODUCTION

It is said that our children are our future, and for that reason we, as a society, try our best to prepare them for the world they live. Secondary education helps accomplish this by bridging the gap from primary education to either post-secondary, vocational training, or the work force. Whichever path an individual decides to take, secondary education is crucial for the prosperity of a nation. With secondary education related to unemployment and incarceration rates, the importance of education becomes apparent to a society [?]mitra). The United States addresses this by spending 5.62
